

Julia's magic makeover!

On Friday she looked gaunt, pale and haggard, yet just four days later Julia Roberts was back to her glam best. How did she do it?

She may be a 41-year-old mum of three, but we have to admit to being a little worried when we saw this picture (near right) of Julia Roberts last week. Looking tired, harassed and with her usually glowing face extremely gaunt and thin, she was a far cry from the gorgeous (and world's highest-paid) actress we know her to be.

But skip four days forward to the world premiere of her latest movie, Duplicity, at London's Leicester Square, and she's made the transformation from exhausted mum back to Hollywood glamour queen.

This has been her first starring role in almost five years, so it's no wonder Julia wanted to wow the flashing cameras. She looked happy and radiant – even though she apparently made three outfit changes before opting for a fail-safe black Dolce & Gabbana trouser suit. It was a complete contrast to her appearance just days earlier.

'Julia looks radiant in this picture,' says Dr Patrick Bowler, Medical Director of Court House Clinics. 'Her cheeks also look fuller and higher, which could be the result of a collagen-stimulating injectable treatment like Sculptra or Radiesse. Julia's forehead is smooth in both pictures, so she may have also had Botox to smoothe frown lines.'

It also looks as if some work has been done on her brows and lashes.

6 MARCH

'She clearly has eyebrow threading,' says Janet Ginnings, top celebrity beauty therapist. 'She has her lashes tinted and is known to have Oxyjet facials to revive her skin.'

Not only is her complexion glowing, but her hair's looking fab, too. 'It seems she's had a few honey highlights to enhance her natural colour, as well as some glossing treatments to create shine,' says celeb hairdresser, Phil Smith.

All this, plus the added finishing touches from a celebrity make-up artist, and you're looking at more than £5,000 worth of fabulousness! R

Words Georgia Goodall

10 MARCH

Katie's also looking sleek and sexy once again

AND HURRAH FOR KATIE, TOO...

There was also a big sigh of relief here at Reveal Towers on Wednesday as Katie Holmes was at last back to her gorgeous best with hubby Tom at the Valkyrie premiere in Tokyo. Gone are the images of her looking tired, thin and unhappy – amazing what some glossy hair extensions, a fake tan and fab pink make-up can do for a girl, isn't it?